

Serving as the President of Envoc (pronounced “invoke”), Calvin Fabre heads up a stellar team of 25 "Envoceans" who exist to help businesses and individuals attain “a better reality through radical creativity and productivity.” For over 12 years, Envoc has been creating beautiful custom software that you can’t buy “off the shelf” and seeing a client’s brand from creation through consumption whether in web design, print, brand strategy corporate dashboards, portals, or mobile applications. Envoc has been voted one of the Best Places to Work in Baton Rouge for three years in a row.

Calvin attended LSU, holds degrees in Computer Science and Math, is a guest lecturer at LSU, Southeastern, and UL. He also speaks on technology and culture at many other technical and non-technical events. Calvin gave Envoc its start after moving his lawnmower out of his utility closet and hiring a lawn company to cut grass while he wrote software. As recovering Left-Brainer, Calvin's right-brain became engaged after acquiring a team of creatives in the digital media worlds and embracing the dark side of design, color, typography, and emotion.

Envoc, as a company, has chosen not to participate in the recent economic recession.
