

Assistant or Associate Professor – Health Education and Promotion
Department of Kinesiology and Health Studies
Southeastern Louisiana University

The Department of Kinesiology and Health Studies at Southeastern Louisiana University invites applicants for a tenure-track Assistant or Associate Professor of Health Education and Promotion position to begin August 2009. Responsibilities will include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in health (e.g., personal and community health, drug education, human sexuality, women's health, stress management). Additional responsibilities include academic advising, engaging in research and scholarly activities, and university service. The successful candidate must have a doctorate degree specializing in Health Education/Promotion or closely related field. ABD candidates may apply, however, to be eligible for the position, applicants must have completed all requirements for the doctorate degree by June 1, 2009. Desired qualifications include university teaching experience, evidence of scholarly productivity and potential to establish and maintain lines of research, and CHES certification.

To apply for this position, please complete and submit an on line application, which will include the names and contact information for three references and the following attachments: letter of application, vitae, recent publications, and transcripts (official transcripts required upon employment). Use this link to the university human resources page to apply for this position: <http://www.selu.edu/admin/hr/vacancies/index.html>.

Southeastern Louisiana University is a progressive regional comprehensive university enrolling over 15,000 undergraduate and graduate students. The University's home, Hammond, is at the crossroads of Interstates 55 and 12 in the heart of Louisiana's thriving Northshore, the fastest growing region of the state. The Department of Kinesiology and Health Studies is one of three academic units in the College of Nursing and Health Sciences. The department serves 700 undergraduate majors pursuing degree programs in Athletic Training, Health and Physical Education Teacher Education, Health Education and Promotion, Kinesiology, and Sport Management, and 50 graduate students seeking the master's degree in Health and Kinesiology. Applicants are encouraged to learn more about the department and university by visiting our website at <http://www.selu.edu/khs>. Southeastern is an AA/ADA/EEO employer.