Greetings from the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice! This newsletter summarizes the 2016-2017 academic year in the Department, focusing in on some of the activities and accomplishments that make us proud of our students, staff, and faculty. Department faculty work hard in the classroom to help students develop necessary skill sets to prepare for the workplace, but more importantly, they inspire students to develop critical thinking skills and empathy, which will make them more informed and active citizens. Further, faculty understand that learning is dynamic and continuous and so they continue to engage students outside of the classroom by creating safe spaces and creative opportunities in which students explore, experience, grow, and begin realize the power they have to shape the world through their actions.

In the sections that follow you will see examples of how the Department’s focus on social justice is realized through the opportunities we provide students, alumni, and members of the local community. Speaker events are held each semester that promote dialogue over important issues that we all face. Alumni are connected with current students to discuss workforce preparation. Unique learning opportunities are promoted by working with other academic departments and/or within national academic organizations. Multiple scholarships are provided through the Department to help students who have financial need and/or to reward outstanding student achievement. Three Study Abroad / Study Away trips have been organized by faculty to allow students to travel beyond southeastern Louisiana to meet new people and learn about themselves while exploring another part of the world. Six Student Organizations are sponsored by the Department, each of which allows students to develop their interests, engage others to conceptualize and realize projects and events that are important both to the University community and the communities students call home.

Many sections that follow end with contact information. Our hope is to maintain close ties with you all and promote activities that interest you as well. If you would like to share your experiences with students, or if you would like to attend a campus event, or if you would like to audit a Study Abroad trip, just contact the coordinator of that event. We would love to hear from you!

This past year was a busy year for the Scholarship Committee, which in addition to awarding scholarships to deserving new students, reviewed academic records of current scholarships awardees and allowed the students to continue receiving financial support. Alumni are encouraged to support these ongoing scholarships—see the last page of this newsletter for details.

During the fall semester of 2016 Sarah Basile maintained the Leslies Fluke MSAS Scholarship, which was awarded, upon her graduation, to Adam Abraham in the spring semester of 2017. The Tom Sullenberger Endowed Scholarship in CJ was awarded to Charleston Dixon during the 2016-2017 academic year. The Richard Kent III scholarship in CJ will be maintained by Kayla Petitto, who first received the award first in 2016 and has continued to be an excellent student. Dane Gautreau received the 21st Judicial District Bar Association Scholarship in CJ and was also awarded the George and Cecil Bedsole Endowed Scholarship in CJ. Dane graduated in Spring 2017, and the University Scholarship Committee will be reviewing applications this fall for new recipients. Current students who meet the qualifications are encouraged to contact the University Scholarship Office. Lastly the Jerry Salomone Endowed Scholarship in Sociology was maintained by sociology major Clair Shriver who will graduate in the fall semester opening an opportunity for another sociology major to receive this scholarship.

The Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice says goodbye to Tara Mann, who served as an Instructor of Criminal Justice from 2008 until her resignation prior to the beginning of the Fall 2016 semester. In her time at Southeastern she primarily taught ‘Introduction to Criminal Justice’, ‘Criminal Law’ and ‘The American Judicial Process’. Ms. Mann also spoke regularly on campus about sexual trafficking and violence against women in advertising. She formed the ‘Homicide Discussion Group’ (seen in photo at right) to meet with interested students and discuss infamous cases. She and her husband intend to move to the Washington, D.C., area within a year or so. The Department wishes her all the best.
Internship Opportunities

Students who enroll in CJ 444, Internship in Criminal Justice, have the opportunity to perform as participant-observers in established criminal justice agencies at the local, state, and federal levels. Since Spring 2014 approximately 50 students have successfully participated in an internship, and many have used this as an opportunity to network with criminal justice professionals and build their resume.

Students have interned with such agencies and organizations as the Louisiana State Police, State Crime Lab, State Training Academy, State Probation and Parole, U.S. Marshal’s Office, Department of Corrections, State Attorney General Office, U.S. Attorney General Office, Parish Sheriff’s Office, and Florida Parish Juvenile Detention Center. Every semester, many students report that the agency with which they interned has reached out to them for potential future employment.

The core objectives of the internship are as follows:
- To provide students with practical job experience as part of their formal degree program;
- To help students understand the realities of certain careers;
- To assist students in developing skills, understanding, and attitudes involving relationships with other employees and supervisors;
- To impress upon students the importance of following directions and accepting supervision;
- To emphasize the importance of effective habits such as professional appearance, promptness, and dependability;
- To develop proficiency in judgment and decision-making situations, and;
- To help students understand the functions of organizations, including interaction between management, government, and the operating environment.

Currently enrolled juniors or seniors interested in a Criminal Justice internship, should contact Frank Tridico, frank.tridico@selu.edu, Instructor and Coordinator of the CJ Internship Program. Students may be eligible to participate with the consent of the coordinator and the Department Head, a good GPA, and the completion of 90 or more credit hours.

Alumni who work in a Criminal Justice related agency that needs interns can e-mail Mr. Tridico directly at frank.tridico@selu.edu to see if we can establish a working relationship that benefits our students.

Student Awards

Undergraduate majors in the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice distinguished themselves with excellent academic achievement this year. Numerous students maintain high grade point averages, have distinguished themselves in student organizations, and plan to pursue higher levels of education after earning their undergraduate degrees. The selection process was difficult for faculty this academic year but we are very happy to have selected Meaghan McCardle and Jessica Casanova for special recognition.

The College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences (AHSS) held its annual honors convocation on May 1, 2017. The Marc P. Riedel Outstanding Graduating Senior Award in Criminal Justice went to Meaghan McCardle, who graduated Summa Cum Laude with a GPA of 4.0 and was also awarded the President’s Medal of Excellence. The F. Dale Parent Outstanding Graduating Senior Award in Sociology was awarded to Jessica Casanova (seen at right with Department Head Dr. Ken Bolton), who graduated Magna Cum Laude with a GPA of 3.828 and a minor in Anthropology.

The Department faculty would also like to recognize two criminal justice majors, Ashley Ellis and Vy Tran, who were published in the Spring 2017 issue of The Pick. Ashley’s submission was entitled “Inevitable Insanities: Coming to Terms with My Mental Illness” while Vy wrote “Anything but Normal”, which is about coming out to her parents. A collaborative effort between the English Department and the Southeastern Writing Center, The Pick has been publishing since 1939. Submissions are reviewed by fellow students, and those standout works which are provisionally accepted are reviewed by faculty members to confirm the quality of the work. The Department congratulates Ashley and Vy for their writing success.
Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice

Association for Humanist Sociology Annual Conference - Cuba

Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice faculty members and students, both undergraduate and graduate, have been particularly active in the Association for Humanist Sociology (AHS) for several years. The Department was well represented at both the AHS Conference in Portland, Oregon in 2015 and Denver, Colorado in 2016. Two faculty members hold national offices in the AHS, Dr. Marc Settembrino and Rebecca Hensley, who is the President-Elect for 2017. Her responsibilities in particular include planning and organizing AHS’s 2017 conference, which will be held in Havana, Cuba in November. The work has been continually challenging, but rewarding as it is anticipated that, once again, many faculty and students will attend and participate in this unique conference that examines our collective future.

Truth Be Told

The Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice has long worked with other Departments and academic programs across campus to create unique opportunities for students to grow as critical thinkers, creative actors, and concerned citizens. For example, for three years or so Department faculty have engaged faculty from The Department of Fine and Performing Arts to collaborate on some interesting and creative ideas (see the below section on Study Abroad trips, for another example).

This past spring semester one such collaborative effort was a big success! Rebecca Hensley, Instructor of Sociology, teamed up with Theater Professors Jim and Chad Winters to co-teach a Social Science Honors course entitled ‘Social Dramas’. Students both in and out of the Honors program who represented a number of academic programs met once a week in the spring semester of 2017 to conceptualize, write, direct, and perform an original play.

The result, titled ‘Truth Be Told’, was the final performance presented by everyone involved in the course. Its showing was attended by students, faculty, and community members. The theme of “speaking truth to power” challenged audience members, many of whom reported afterward that they were greatly moved by its important message.

Quiz Bowl

For the third straight year, Department faculty competed in the Phi Kappa Phi Intramural Quiz Bowl as part of the University’s Homecoming festivities. Playing under the team name ‘The Social Factors’, faculty members Kellen Gilbert, Robert Martin, Lisa Olson, and Peter Shrock went head to head against teams of faculty from across the University. The faculty answered questions on a kaleidoscopic assortment of subjects, from cell biology to Captain America and everything in between. The Department’s team had its best showing yet. After advancing to a thrilling single-elimination match against the multi-year defending champions, ‘The Social Factors’ finished in second place among faculty teams. Who knows, given their continuing improvement, maybe 2017 will be their year. The Department wishes them much success!
Social Justice Speaker Series (SJSS)

In November 2016, the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice welcomed Chris Eder as our 12th Annual Social Justice Speaker. Chris, an Air Force Veteran, artist, and yoga teacher, spoke about the issues that veterans face and discussed the ways veterans can make a peaceful transition once they return from warzones. Specifically, he discussed how yoga is used to treat post-traumatic stress disorder and acute trauma. He emphasized the healing potential of yoga in during his lecture, and also offered a free yoga class in the Pennington Center afterwards to demonstrate.

The Department is excited to welcome Adrienne Maree Brown (seen in photo at right) to Southeastern during the fall semester of 2017 as our 13th Annual Social Justice Speaker. Adrienne is the co-editor of ‘Octavia’s Brood: Science Fiction from Social Justice Movements’ and describes herself as a writer, facilitator, pleasure activist, coach, healer, and doula living in Detroit. Her new book, Emergent Strategy: Shaping Change, Changing Worlds, offers a radical vision of self-help, society-help, and planet-help designed to positively shape the futures we want to live in and experience. The Department will host Adrienne in early November, 2017. For more information, e-mail Dr. Marc Settembrino, chair of the SJSS committee, Marc.Settembrino@selu.edu.

The Graduates

On February 15, 2017 the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice welcomed ‘The Graduates” to Southeastern. ‘The Graduates’ are a three-year old performance ensemble comprised of former members of the Louisiana Correctional Institute for Women (LCIW) Drama Club. They use their personal experiences with the criminal justice system to create performances that reach out to young at-risk women, give a view of the effects of incarceration on individual lives, and encourage those who have the power to shift current policies to do so. The ensemble’s performances are directed by Ausettua Amor Amenkum (Big Queen of the Washita Nation and artistic director of Kumbuka African Drum and Dance Collective) and Kathy Randels, artistic director of ArtSpot Productions and founder of The LCIW Drama Club.

In front of a capacity audience in the Student Union Theater, the Graduates performed “Won’t Bow Down!” a dramatization of stories from several sources, including the Graduates’ personal experiences with the criminal justice system, which focused on the heavy toll that Louisiana’s criminal justice system takes on minority communities. After the performance, the Graduates and Southeastern faculty members led the audience in a conversation about ways they can participate in ending mass incarceration. Though differences of opinion existed, participants felt that the open dialogue about this important issue was valuable.
Graduate Program in Applied Sociology

It has been a very active and a very productive 2016-2017 academic year in the Department’s Masters of Science in Applied Sociology (MSAS) program. During this time, twelve students successfully defended their thesis or internship reports and were awarded graduate degrees. Summer 2016 graduates included Maretta McDonald, Mandy Pickering, Adrienne Sanders, and Stephanie Travis. Fall 2016 graduates included Sarah Basile, Demitrius Jones, and Mariah Wineski. Spring 2017 graduates included Keedra Butler, Zachary Cuny, Amy Hall, Samantha McNally, and Paul Strickland. Congratulations are extended to all our 2016-2017 graduates.

Many of these students have presented their research at national academic conferences and/or published their research in academic journals. Their efforts continue to make us proud of them. Further, some students who have graduated with an MSAS degree have been successful in doctoral programs and in finding employment positions serving our region and state. Among our most recent graduates, Maretta McDonald is currently enrolled in the Sociology doctoral program at Louisiana State University; and Sarah Basile has been accepted in the Sociology doctoral program at the University of South Florida and plans to begin in the Fall 2017 semester.

If you are interested in our MSAS program and/or need additional information, or if you are a former graduate of our program and would like to update us on your current status, please contact the program coordinator Dr. John Boulahanis, jboulahanis@selu.edu or at (985) 549-2384.

LEaD Presentations

Now in its 6th year, the Sociology and Criminal Justice Department’s speaker series ‘Leadership, Education and Development’ (LEaD) presents Southeastern alumni guest speakers who are currently working in the field of criminal justice. Speakers talk about their own Southeastern educational experience and professional development, how they chose criminal justice as a profession, and how they developed their particular interests and specialties. The program is facilitated by Mr. Frank L. Tridico, a current faculty member as well as a retired Lt. Colonel with the Louisiana State Police, who understands that students today often have difficulty meeting with leaders and professionals who are actually working in the criminal justice fields that students are thinking about entering. This program fills that gap by linking alumni, who want to give back to SELU and help prepare our students for the workforce, with students who will become the leaders of tomorrow’s criminal justice system.

The LEaD series invites two or three alumni to campus each semester and they usually meet with 75 to 90 interested students for an hour and a half. For example, in the spring semester of 2017 the United States Marshal of the Eastern District of Louisiana, Genny May, came to Southeastern and spoke to engaged students on a variety of topics, stressing the need to network early with senior members of the criminal justice profession. Later in the semester, Trooper First Class Dustin Dwight of the Louisiana State Police, spoke with students and discussed the career path to become a criminal interdiction officer responsible for drug interdiction. Trooper Dwight also emphasized the need for networking while discussing how to become one of Louisiana’s finest.

Speakers for the fall semester of 2017 and the dates of their presentations will be announced during the semester. Just visit the Department’s webpage for more information. This semester’s emphasis will be on local and parish criminal justice systems. The speaker series is open to all Southeastern students and is especially appropriate for students thinking about entering the criminal justice program. If you are an alumnus interested in participating, e-mail Frank.Tridico@selu.edu for more information.
Student Organization News

Alpha Kappa Delta (AKD)

The Department’s chapter of the Alpha Kappa Delta (AKD) International Sociology Honor Society (seen below) had an active third year of operation. Three new undergraduate and two new graduate members were inducted during the year. In Fall 2016, AKD collected about $100 worth of toys as part of the holiday toy drive overseen by the Livingston Parish Sheriff’s Office, and also donated about $85 and two grocery bags of non-perishable food items to the Greater Baton Rouge Food Bank, in the aftermath of the catastrophic floods of August 2016. In the Spring 2017 semester, AKD held tabling events to petition for the elimination of Louisiana’s habitual offender law, ultimately collecting more than 150 signatures. They also held a book drive for Louisiana Books 2 Prisoners (LB2P), a non-profit organization that distributes books to incarcerated persons in Louisiana and neighboring states. In all, AKD donated 14 boxes worth of books to LB2P as well as more than $260 in financial donations.

SSA

Throughout the 2016 – 17 academic year, the Southeastern Sociological Association (SSA) put on multiple events that ended with amazing results, including the ‘I Love You Challenge’, ‘Body Appreciation’, and the water drive for St. Joseph. The ‘I Love You Challenge’ was held on the day after Valentine’s Day. This event was based on the idea that sometimes people forget to tell their loved ones how important they are. So the SSA asked students to text or call people who were important to them to say, “I love you.” Students had to include the word “I,” in order to make their message more meaningful and thoughtful. The ‘Body Appreciation’ event, which was held on May 3, 2017, provided encouragement to the students during Dead Week. ‘Body Appreciation’ was intended to let students know that they matter and to build self-encouragement through quotes and chants. Finally, there was the water drive for St. Joseph, the seat of Tensas Parish in northeastern Louisiana, which has had to deal with similar water problems as Flint, Michigan. Since this was not a widely publicized situation, throughout the Spring semester the SSA hosted multiple awareness events. The SSA also provided opportunities for people to donate water for delivery to St. Joseph. At the end of the semester, within a span of two months, the SSA collected more than 100 cases of bottled water. This was the organization’s first major event, and despite some errors and mistakes, the SSA members learned, pulled together, and helped out a community of people facing a dire need.

Reconnect

To become a member of the Reconnect Sustainability Organization just tour campus and see committed students sitting at a Reconnect table with a sign-up sheet and friendly and inviting faces. During Reconnect meetings students discuss projects that they will be working on such as the Reconnect Farmers Market, the SELU campus community garden, and tabling events that seek to raise awareness about recycling on campus. Reconnect has garden work days at the community garden in place of meetings once or twice a semester, which involve pulling weeds, cultivating the soil, and raising awareness.

The Reconnect Farmers Market (seen below) is student operated and is organized each semester by a student Manager Intern, who learns about the importance of public spaces for people to share knowledge and skills around campus. The farmers market is a firsthand sociological experience that demonstrates the importance of supporting local farmers, sustainable food, and the local economy in creating a more connected campus community. The farmers market is gaining momentum, and it is a great way to offer healthy and sustainable lunch alternatives to students.

Reconnect has a table at each market to inform students about what the organization does, and a sign-up sheet. It is rewarding to see so many students appreciate the farmers market and converse with the vendors and other students. It shows that students are willing to eat healthy foods and locally grown foods when given the opportunity.

At the market, Reconnect also shares information about the Real Food Challenge, a national, student-run campaign to devote 20 percent of each University’s dining budget to local, sustainable, fair, and humane food by 2020. Three Reconnect members attended the Real Food Challenge National Student Summit last fall in Athens, GA and found the experience enlightening! More students plan on going back this fall.

Reconnect has also begun to raise money to hire speakers to visit campus to raise awareness and discuss how food justice is also racial justice. Reconnect is working to create a healthy environment which improves the health and happiness of the community.
September 2017 marks the ten year anniversary that our Department was granted a charter (Iota-Nu) from Alpha Phi Sigma, a national criminal justice honor society. Alpha Phi Sigma recognizes academic excellence of undergraduate and graduate criminal justice students. In order to qualify for membership, undergraduate students must have declared criminal justice as a major or minor, completed at least three full time semesters, and have attained a minimum overall GPA of 3.2. Graduate students enrolled in the Criminal Justice concentration of the Applied Sociology program qualify for membership upon the completion of four graduate courses and a minimum GPA of 3.4. If you have any questions or need any additional information, please feel free to contact the chapter advisor, Dr. John Boulahanis at jboulahanis@selu.edu or at (985) 549-2384. Additional information is available online at the following address: http://www.alphaphisigma.org/

Pre-Law Association

The Pre-Law Students’ Association (see photo below) has been busy this school year. Two officers participated in a statewide pre-law and leadership conference and had the opportunity to meet and socialize with other future law students from several Louisiana universities. Several students participated in moot court competitions in Baton Rouge and Lafayette, with two winning orator awards at the Lafayette competition. The Association has also hosted several events on campus, including a coffee and doughnut fundraiser and an ice-cream and pizza social. Also, members participated in the Strawberry Festival, where three criminal justice professors volunteered to sit in a dunk tank to help raise funds for future travel. It has been an exciting and eventful year for the Association and we can’t wait to see what the next school year has in store for our students.

StandOUT

The Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice is proud to sponsor StandOUT, the campus lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer organization. StandOUT works to create an inclusive campus that welcomes all students regardless of their gender identity and/or sexual orientation, and everyone is welcome to attend StandOUT meetings and participate in events.

This school year was busy for StandOUT. In November they observed Transgender Day of Remembrance. Students gathered for a candlelight vigil to mourn the loss of transgender people murdered in 2016. In March they celebrated Transgender Day of Visibility. Trans Day of Visibility recognizes trans lives and raises awareness of the discrimination transgender, genderqueer, and gender-nonconforming people experience in their daily lives. In April StandOUT hosted a “Once Upon a Time” themed prom.

StandOUT has many exciting events planned and is looking forward to the new school year. For more information contact Dr. Settembrino via e-mail at Marc.Settembrino@selu.edu or e-mail standout.slu@gmail.com.
National parks have been called “America’s best idea”; the U.S. was the first country on earth to establish national parks. Dr. David Burley and Mr. Gerald McNeil are planning a study away trip to the wondrous Zion National Park in southern Utah for June 4-12, 2018. The trip will offer courses in environmental sociology and geography. Students will hike in one of the most unique and beautiful places in the world, will learn about public lands, and meet with park rangers to learn about what the National Park Service does and the challenges they deal with, such as the constant struggle to balance land preservation and tourism. Students will also meet with local officials from the gateway town of Springdale, Utah. Zion is the economic lifeblood of the town but with more than three million visitors a year there are also many challenges. Students will learn about how humans have shaped this region and how the land has shaped humans. The trip is open to all students and to anyone who wants to take the trip and audit the courses. If interested, e-mail david.burley@selu.edu or gmcneill@selu.edu. It’s going to be great!

In May of 2017, the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice reintroduced their Criminal Justice study abroad program after a more than 10 year hiatus. Between May 16 and May 23, 2017, Dr. Michael Bisciglia escorted 14 students to London, where they spent time studying and contrasting the United States’ and United Kingdom’s systems of criminal justice, and exploring the rich history of England (see photo at left). Excursions included visits to the Inns of Court, the Old Bailey and the Royal Courts of Justice, and the Tower of London, as well as (appropriately enough for a criminal justice program) a Jack the Ripper walking tour. The success of this year’s program has encouraged the Department to expand the May 2018 study abroad program to include not only London but also Edinburgh, Scotland. The trip is open to all students as well as anyone who wants to take the trip and audit the courses. If interested, e-mail Michael.bisciglia@selu.edu for more information.

In the May Interim Semester of 2017, Dr. Marc Settembrino led a group of nine students to study abroad in Cuba. This trip was the Department’s fourth consecutive annual study abroad program in Cuba and was a huge success. This year’s theme was ‘Globalization, Disasters, and Resilience’. Students learned about Cuba’s relationship to other nations and how the U.S. blockade has caused significant hardships for the Cuban people. Students also learned how the Cuban people have remained fiercely independent and resilient. During the program, students visited organic farms, museums, and art schools, where they interacted with and learned directly from the Cuban people.

Dr. Settembrino will lead another study abroad program to Cuba next summer, May 15–24, 2018. The program theme is Sociology and the Arts in Cuba, and the group will be joined by Cristina Molina, Assistant Professor of New Media and Animation. The trip is open to all students as well as anyone who wants to take the trip and audit the courses. For more information please contact Dr. Settembrino via e-mail at Marc.Settembrino@selu.edu.
Kenneth Bolton, Jr. “Prelude to the Neoliberal Chronicles; or, How I Came to Understand the Liberation of Sociology as Necessary for Human Transcendence.” Presented at the 42nd Annual Conference of the Mid-South Sociological Association, October 2016, North Charleston, SC.

Kenneth Bolton, Jr. “Neoliberal Chronicles I–Sociological Praxis Interruptus; or, How I Learned to Stop Problematizing and Embrace Corporate Curricula.” Presented at the 41st Annual Meeting of the Association for Humanist Sociology, November 2016, Denver, CO.

John Boulahanis organized and chaired a paper session, “Homicide Studies,” at the 42nd Annual Conference of the Mid-South Sociological Association, October 2016, North Charleston, SC.

John Boulahanis, co-organized and co-chaired a paper session, “GIS and Spatial Applications in Social Context,” at the 42nd Annual Conference of the Mid-South Sociological Association, October 2016, North Charleston, SC.

John Boulahanis. “Comparing Exceptionally Cleared Homicide Cases to Open Homicide Cases: Do Victim Characteristics Impact Investigative Decisions?” Presented at the 42nd Annual Conference of the Mid-South Sociological Association, October 2016, North Charleston, SC.

Kellen Gilbert chaired a paper session, “Education Trails,” at the 77th Annual Meeting of the Society for Applied Anthropology, April 2017, Santa Fe, NM.

Kellen Gilbert. “From Southeastern to the Serengeti: Observations on Humankind and Human Kindness.” Lyceum Lights lecture at Southeastern Louisiana University, April 2017, Hammond, LA.

Rebecca Hensley. “Structural Violence and the Rigged Game: Teaching Stratification and Inequality as We Circle the Drain.” Presented at the 41st Annual Meeting of the Association for Humanist Sociology, November 2016, Denver, CO.

Gerald McNeill co-chaired the 2016 Annual Conference of the Southeast Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians, which was held from September 28th to October 1st in New Orleans, LA.

Marc R. Settembrino moderated a panel, “Disaster Vulnerability across the Life Course,” at the 41st Annual Natural Hazards Research and Applications Workshop, July 2016, Broomfield, CO.

Marc R. Settembrino, Sarah Basile, and Xavier Guadalupe-Diaz. “Sexual Orientation and Hurricane Evacuation Plans: An Exploratory Study.” Poster presentation at the 41st Annual Natural Hazards Research and Applications Workshop, July 2016, Broomfield, CO.

HELP US CONTINUE THE SUCCESS OF OUR STUDENTS
SUPPORT THE DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY & CRIMINAL JUSTICE

If you would like to make a contribution, we would greatly appreciate it!

You will be recognized in our next newsletter.

To support the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice Developmental Fund, which assists with day-to-day expenses and sponsored events, please make checks payable to: Southeastern Development Foundation & Sociology & Criminal Justice and mail to: Sociology and Criminal Justice; SLU 10686; Hammond, LA 70402.

My/Our Gift is:  □ $ 10 - $49  □ $ 50 – 99  □ $ 100 and above

To support the following endowed scholarships, please use the web link below to make your contribution:

The Jerry Salomone Endowed Scholarship in Sociology
The Tom Sullenberger Endowed Scholarship in Criminal Justice
The Leslie Flucke Memorial Scholarship in Applied Sociology

THANK YOU!

We want to hear from you! Please let us know how you are doing, and if you would be interested in being nominated for an alumni award from the College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences (see award description at: www.selu.edu/alumni_donors/alumni_assoc/recognitions/index.html)

Name: __________________________________________________
Address: ________________________________________________
________________________________________________________
Email: __________________________________________________
Phone: __________________________________________________
Year of Graduation and Major: _______________________________
Additional Comments: