STUDENT ACCESSIBILITY SERVICES

RECEIVING ACCOMMODATIONS EVERY SEMESTER

Once a student has completed the accommodations request process, they still have a number of responsibilities to fulfill every semester in order to receive their accommodations. Self-advocacy comes into play in this area of the accommodations process. For most students, self-advocacy is a new arena because the management of their disability and resources has been in the hands of others. Therefore, SAS will provide support to assist students in becoming more independent. We've outlined the steps to getting your accommodations every semester.

- Use a copy of your schedule to fill out the Accommodation Request Form (ARF). This form can be found on our website, and both a PDF and an online version are available on the site. The ARF will have the information needed to prepare your "Instructor's letter". The "Instructor's letter" is the form you'll provide to each of your instructors which verifies your registration at Student Accessibility Services and approved accommodation plan.
- Contact each of your instructors to let them know you'd like to meet with them about your academic accommodations.
- Once you receive the "Instructor's Letter" from SAS take it to your instructors to be signed, ideally within the first two weeks of class.
- Meet with your instructors about your accommodations—make an appointment or see them during their office hours. This will give you the opportunity to discuss your accommodations and address any concerns privately with the instructor's full attention. Depending on the structure of the course, adjustments to the accommodations plan may need to be made. If there are any concerns, students and instructors are strongly encouraged to contact SAS for clarification. When an agreement has been reached about how to handle the accommodations have the instructor sign the accommodation letter.
- After you have met with all instructors, return the signed Instructor's Letter to SAS. A confirmation email will be sent to you and instructors within three business days of receiving your signed blue letter.
- You must return your signed letter to be eligible to receive accommodations. Your accommodations will not be considered legitimate until the signed letter has been returned to SAS.
