The counseling program continues to collect data from the Counselor Preparation Examination, the National Counselor Exam, internal performance assessments, external evaluations (field supervisors), and exit interviews. The faculty continues ongoing assessment and evaluation with these measures.

The results of the CPCE indicate that students continue to score higher on average in most of the 8 core areas (as designated by CACREP). In the Spring, 2009 administration, all students passed the exam.

In the April administration of the NCE, scores of Southeastern students were higher on average than the national means on all 8 core areas.

Internal performance assessments are ongoing. Students who exhibit problems at designated gateways are identified and possible actions are discussed. In the past year, one student was identified and asked to repeat practicum. A remediation plan was implemented after consultation with the student practicum supervisor and University supervisor.

Supervisor evaluations are examined, and unsatisfactory reports are discussed with the student and University faculty. During the past 2 years, only one unsatisfactory evaluation was completed. That student met with the site supervisor and University supervisor and satisfactorily completed the field experience.

Exit interviews continue to be a good source for determining student satisfaction and program weaknesses. In recent student interviews, positive feedback greatly exceeds negative comments. Changes in the curriculum include certification-eligible courses in play therapy and addictions counseling.
