

BETH INBAU is the President & CEO of the Metropolitan Safety Council Inc., (dba National Safety Council, South Louisiana Chapter). Since 1993, she has lead this not-for-profit training and membership organization in its mission of reducing deaths and injuries due to preventable causes.

Beth is a native of the New Orleans area. She earned her Associate Degree in Occupational Safety & Health from Delgado Community College and her Bachelor Degree from the University of Alabama.

Beth is a Nationally Registered Emergency Medical Technician and teaches the National Safety Council's basic and advanced levels of first aid, CPR and AED courses.

Her industrial safety career included working at Ochsner Hospital, Jefferson Parish Government & Fire Department. She currently teaches many of the National Safety Council courses offered by the Safety Council, including:

- Defensive Driving Courses
- First Aid, CPR, AED
- Occupational Safety Courses
- Incident Investigation
- OSHA Compliance Certificate Courses
- Advance Safety Certificate Courses

Her chapter also offers consulting services and a variety of community safety programs, such as:

- Prevention of Falls to the Elderly
- Poison Prevention
- Emergency Preparedness
- Alive at 25 (driver improvement course for 15-25 year olds)

Beth also serves on the executive committees of the Delta Safety Society and the New Orleans Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers.