

Wayne M. LaCombe, MSPH, CSP, is currently an Industrial Hygienist at ExxonMobil in Baton Rouge, LA where he is responsible for IH programs. He has been in this position since May 2007. Previously, he worked 8 years for OSHA – Region VI as a Safety and Health Compliance Officer. During his tenure with OSHA, he conducted or assisted on several hundred compliance inspections and incident investigations; he conducted a 5-week detail at OSHA’s National Office in Washington, D.C.; he served on the Region VI Special Response Team and on the National Chemical Special Response Team. Prior to working for OSHA, he worked 1 year for the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality and was responsible for compliance inspection reports for employers dealing with hazardous waste. Wayne LaCombe has also taught several courses in occupational safety and health at Southeastern Louisiana University – Department of Industrial Technology from 2001 to 2008. He acquired his Masters of Science in Public Health, majoring in Industrial Hygiene, from The University of Alabama at Birmingham – School of Public Health (1998) and his Bachelor’s of Science in Toxicology from The University of Louisiana at Monroe – School of Pharmacy (1996, formerly Northeast Louisiana University).