The staff in the Office of Financial Aid at Southeastern Louisiana University is now and has always been committed to upholding the highest level of ethical and professional standards. Such standards are evidenced in all practices and policies established in the Office of Financial Aid and governed by various codes of ethics including, but not limited to, the Code of Ethics for Public Employee and the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators’ Statement of Ethical Practices (www.nasfaa.org/mkt/about/Statement_of_Ethical_Principles.aspx)

Furthermore, Financial Aid staff members refrain from participation in any activities that may directly or indirectly result in a monetary benefit to the employee. Southeastern does not promote or support a “Preferred Lenders List”; however, it does provide educational opportunities for students and parents to obtain important information from lenders necessary in making well-informed decisions.

The Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended by the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008, includes many disclosure and reporting requirements. Southeastern Louisiana University has developed a website to convey information to students, faculty and staff in accordance with these requirements (www.selu.edu/univdisclosures).

Failure to maintain satisfactory academic progress may result in financial aid suspension. Students placed on financial aid suspension are ineligible to receive Title IV funds. These students may also be ineligible to receive state or institutional funds depending on the specific guidelines for each program. The Office of Financial Aid Satisfactory Academic Progress policy can be found at: www.selu.edu/financialaid. Click on Satisfactory Academic Progress.

Failure to attend classes or resigning from the University before 60% of the end of the academic term will result in your federal Financial Aid being revised, cancelled, or charged back to your account.

Once federal funds have been received and it is determined that you meet all applicable requirements, the funds will be applied to your tuition and fees in the academic term in which you are receiving financial aid and for minor prior year charges. For more information and instructions, please visit the Controller’s Office webpage: http://www.southeastern.edu/admin/controller and click on Student Refunds.
