1	The cost should depend on the age and student or non-student status of the patron.	12/2/2015 10:56 AM
2	I don't physically attend classes on campus. I'm in a cohort.	12/1/2015 6:06 PM
3	I would pay that amount for a show I really wanted to see, if my student ID couldn't allow me free admission.	12/1/2015 1:18 PM

7	The buildings on campus are not secure. There is a lack of police presence not during football games. Pottle building is unsecure during football games. Pottle in general is unsecure and unsafe in an emergency like a lockdown.	11/11/2015 9:45 AM

11	I am honestly to broke.	11/10/2015 12:25 PM
12	Depends on the level of talent	11/10/2015 11:41 AM
13	Tickets shouldn't be over 20$ I'm sure somewhere in the tuition SELU took more than what was needed so I'm pretty sure this is possible	11/10/2015 11:26 AM
14	I think that $10-$15 is a reasonable price considering a movie is about that much.	11/10/2015 10:46 AM
15	I need to study. Not go see stupid plays	11/10/2015 10:16 AM
16	N/A	10/30/2015 8:15 PM
17	N/A	10/29/2015 12:05 PM
18	depends on what is being presented.	10/28/2015 1:31 PM
19	MOVE SHOWS FROM THE FALLING APART VONNIE BORDEN THEATRE TO COLUMBIA.	10/28/2015 7:00 AM
20	10 dollars for a show isn't bad.	10/27/2015 6:01 PM
21	I've never had any reason to attend the theater.	10/27/2015 11:50 AM
22	I pay out the butt for tuition I should get free admission	10/27/2015 10:59 AM
23	i would pay ten dollars or less to watch a play. It's great when it's free with student ID though.	10/27/2015 10:03 AM
24	i would not want to pay more than $5 for events at columbia	10/27/2015 9:53 AM
25	College is hard to pay for, and I'm currently unemployed. I don't have any free spending money, so if it cost even $5-$10 to attend an event at the Columbia Theatre I would probably decline to attend.	10/27/2015 7:59 AM
26	multiple nights at a lower price for well known acts is better than a single night price gouge. Artists love playing in front of sell-out crowds, fans like lower pricing and the availability to go multiple nights. The higher the ticket price the more chance people will come out of the event feeling "ripped off". How about keeping the concessions(if any provided) in check as well	10/27/2015 6:24 AM
27	I think the theater should make a point to perform plays that students are currently studying like Shakespeare for ENGL 435 or ENGL 468 and other plays such as the ones previously listed because you study them in ENGL 300. I think it would give students an excellent visual aid and contribute to their learning experience.	10/26/2015 8:43 PM
28	Rather than more groups, I'd suggest giving the groups that are performing more publicity (maybe through email?). I never really hear anything about who is performing at the Colombia. Also, I wouldn't mind paying $15 for a ticket for myself, but when you're paying for more than one person it gets too expensive at over $10/person.	10/26/2015 7:17 PM
29	We are all college students on college budgets and I know that I can't always afford to pay more than $20 for one ticket for an event that may only last two hours when I drove over an hour to come watch. If its too expensive then its not worth the drive.	10/26/2015 6:46 PM
30	Depends on the quality of the show	10/26/2015 6:33 PM
31	I'd pay $50 to see Chance.	10/26/2015 4:57 PM
32	I do not usually attend performances. However, I would consider attending to see certain stand-up comedians.	10/26/2015 4:56 PM
33	I will pay a reasonable price if the money goes towards a cause that is logical. However, my tuition has already paid for this, so I prefer not to pay. If there is a request donations this would be better than charging students or other guests.	10/26/2015 4:29 PM
