

How to Run an Impact Report

An Impact Report is a tool used in Modern Campus Curriculum (Curriculog) to identify how proposed changes to a course (like revisions or inactivation) might affect other courses, programs, or departments within the curriculum. It essentially shows where a course is referenced as a prerequisite, corequisite, or within a program. This report helps ensure transparency and allows for informed decision-making by showing which areas of the curriculum need to be reviewed and potentially adjusted due to the proposed changes.

How do I run an Impact Report?

An Impact Report is a required function within the Course Revision, Delete Course, Program Revision and Program Deletion approval processes. At the top of the proposal, you will see the “Run Impact Report” button.

Clicking on this button will open a pop-up window. You will ALWAYS choose the DRAFT catalog that is available in the list of “Maps” for the NEXT academic year. After selecting the draft catalog, click “Generate Report” at the bottom of the pop-up window.

Once the program has been run, simply highlight the text in the report and paste it into the box in the Approval Process using Control + V. DO NOT right click and paste as the input box does not support that functionality.

Your pasted data should look similar to the example below. You can now close the pop-up window.

Additionally, an Impact Report can be run separate from an Approval Process by clicking the “Reports” tab at the top of your Curriculum homepage.

After clicking on the Impact Report on the Reports page, you will enter a course Prefix, a Code (4-digit course number) and then you will click “Add External System”.

Once again you will select the DRAFT catalog that is available for the NEXT academic year and then click “Submit Report”.
