[Jason Latiolais]:

I knew what Southeastern was capable of doing for me.

And I look at what it is now and they have made so many improvements.

You look at the faculty.

You look at the class sizes.

You look at all those type of things, and all the other universities around here, I'd put Southeastern up against any one of them.

[Jason Latiolais]:

This university is important to me.

When you come here to Southeastern, it is a family.

[Jason Latiolais]:

You're going to make relationships over the years that will be long lasting.

Dr. Cresson had a lasting impact on me.

I've had a pretty good relationship with him over the years, and that really has grown into something that's important to me.

[00;01;31;31]

[Jason Latiolais]:

I applied.

I got on and really worked my way up through the organization, starting as a field engineer, and becoming a project manager and then running different parts of the business over the years.

In 2022, I became the president of Barriere Construction.

I've encouraged some of my employees to come back and get their MBA here at Southeastern.

[00;02;06;20]

[Jason Latiolais]:

I love being able to build infrastructure in my home parish of Tangipahoa Parish and the surrounding areas.

It's very, very rewarding to see a job, a road that we have constructed and built for the traveling public.

[00;02;27;34]

[Jason Latiolais]:

I'm just trying to do the best I can with the position that I'm in, to give back as much as possible,

[00;02;32;41]

[upbeat contemporary music]

[00;02;34;10]

[Jason Latiolais]:

Whether that's students or the faculty or whatever we can do to help further this university.

It's important.

As much as I can give back, that's what I want to do.
